There is a slight gloom coming over the market. Stocks yester-lay by no means felt so lively a they have been. Morris Canal and all others are somewhat sick and dispeptic. There is no ac-counting for the changes of the weather.

Somebody has sent us a terrible pill for the Morris Canal. He alls himself "Q," and we have put him for the present into a corner. We must first know our correspondent before we publish What is the Committee of "125" about? What good have they lone? They make reports and pass resolutions. What else? Just what a talking Congress will do. Two of the dilapidated Issur-nace Companies have agreed to pay up—the City and the United States. The rest will probably go into Chancery.

Grand Dioramic Scene 6. SCENE IN ITALY.—This scene represents the dawn of day—the light gradu liy increasing until the rising sun throws its rays woon the surrounding objects, we had brilliancy truly effective—vessels are seen pa-sing and re-passing on the lake, some lying at anchos, fishing, others making sail; the whole presenting a husy scene of animated life. After the meritian sun has displayed its splet to sunset gradually exhibits its besties, some lying at anchos, fishing, others making sail; the besties, suncereded by the twilingta, so frequently and justly alluded to, of an Italian sky, with its soft, clear and neilow light, richly delimeated. As the shades of evening gaths rover the scene, the discendand herds are seen driven forward by the Sh pherds, while the tinking convoledly, and soft music of the pipes which are datinely heard, delight the ear, and strongly recall the pleasing textilized ecloyed in rural ide. After twiling the theory of the recent of the property of the scene. A PROCESSION OF MONKS is now seen, altending the funeral of one of their order, by I arch light—they passin the fourground, entering the Abby, from which the deep and rich tones of an arguare heard, while the regular to hing of the Abbey bell, ands the soleumity of the scene.

Grand Dioramic Scene 7. CONFLAGRATION OF MOS—The burning of this city, which was the prelude to the downfall of Napoleon, presented one of the most awful subline sights, perhaps ever winessed; and yo this grand and terrific spectacle is exhibited in this scene, with an effect which startles the beholder, and carries to his imagination admost all the details which have early been published of that tremedous act of Rossian resolution. The opening of the scene represents the city of Moscow by moonlight—the sounds of distant remendous act of Rossian resolution. The spening the inhabitants, who are seen rushing to absence, and perform many other paradoxical feath of mind.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS,—DR. WM. BRANDRETH, the discoverer of these Palls, was of opinion that the re was only ONE DISEASE, an impurity of blood, which, by impeding the circulation, hought on inflatination or derangement of the or, as or part where it settled, and so impressed was he of the truth of this simp e the rr, that he spent thirty years in exceriments and laborious research into the medicine witness of the numerous plants composing the Vege table Kingdom; this object being to compose a medicine wh ch should at orce purify, and produce, by specific action, a removal of the humor- from the blood by the stoman hand bowels, as by the continuation of the use of such a nedicine, all humors are sure to be carried off, and the blood assume a state of rourity.

Many other med cines are advertised as having properties equal to these, but the proprietor of these Pills in this country, the grandom of the dicoverer; would wish those who think well of this PRINCIPLE, and who have made use of such medicines, to give THESE PILLS a trial. They will at once he satisfied of the difference of that medicine which has been St years before the English public, and has gained a sale there of not less than 2.20,000 sterling per amoun, and those medicines which are forced into not cot by advertise-ment, before their properties can be fully known even by the dicoverers themselves. C splaine of ships and merchants will find this medicine one which will ensure their health, a d answer well for exportation.
